Horizontal Pliers

The semi-circular notch can be placed on any teeth that need to be bonded to the tongue buckle or bracket

Use horizontal pliers to twist the teeth at the angle between the mesial and distal midline to improve the control of the twisted teeth.

Vertical Pliers

A depression is formed in the indentation or the gingival side of the attachment to increase the retention of the transparent braces or retainer.

Torque boosting of individual tooth roots is achieved by pinching recesses at the lip or lingual gum edges of any tooth.

Tear Drop Pliers

The teardrop-shaped traction hook can be used for type II traction, type III traction, triangular traction, and type I adduction traction. The use of antibody-only traction and traction for elongation of certain teeth.

The angle and depth of the teardrop-shaped traction hook can be adjusted freely according to the direction of the elastic traction hook

With other bonding accessories, the teeth are elongated by traction so that the invisible appliance fits

Hole Punch Pliers

Cut off part of the braces on the tongue side of the central incisor so that the braces will not press the dental papilla

The semi-circular notch can be placed on any teeth that need to be bonded to the tongue buckle or bracket

Punch forceps can make a semi-circular notch on the lip side of the appliance
